The City of Solvang recently decided to sell a few surplus vehicles. I called other municipalities to find out about the agencies through which their surplus vehicles were sold. After checking them out I decided on using AL&S, Inc. after word of mouth from a local sheriff that recommended them.

I have been very satisfied with the service that we received. They happily took our surplus computers, which would have taken some time and money to dispose of properly. Working with Joaquin was superb because of the personal service that enabled me to work on problems or issues quickly.

The results were good also. The City of Solvang got a fair deal and I expect to sell more of our surplus vehicles and equipment through them.
